Neither Wisdom nor Statesmanship.

In all controversies of right with wrong, virtue with vice, where the latter assumes dangerous proportions, it becomes necessary for truth to take the offensive and lead in the attack, since evil can well afford, is ever anxious, to remain unobserved and unmolested until its malignant forces can have time to securely entrench themselves. With them time and opportunity are everything. All they want is to be let alone until their empire can be laid and consolidated. Then the signal of defiance is flung to the breeze and the batteries, masked and silent while the busy work of preparation was going on, open the conflict in deadly earnestness. The time of diplomacy is past, and war to the knife is declared. The people had watching but would not listen, and dreamed on until their slumbers were rudely broken by the shock of battle. Thus has it been and so it will be to the end.

It sometimes happens that men who sound the alarm of danger are looked upon with doubt and come to be themselves regarded with suspicion. The good, quiet people don't like to be disturbed. They rub their sleepy eyes and look about them dreamily, the wolf isn't to be seen, and they go back to repose out of patience with the troublesome person who created a false alarm. In the morning they are agast to find that the night-prowler has been busy with their flocks and devoured them while their sleepers slept.

The red rider of the desert swoops down on a defenceless caravan, does his fearful work and is away with his scalps, his plunder and his hapless prisoners to the mountain fastnesses, safe from pursuit. He came like the shadow of a cloud and went like the wind. He has left the fatal evidence of his presence only in burned trails, gutted of their contents, scarred, mangled, ghastly remains of the unrecognized dead, bodies of murdered men, little children and ravished women—that is all. If any lived to tell the tale, or if some frightened traveler pass that way and relate the even, it is only a nine days' horror which distance dilutes into a kind of dubious wonder, such as school-girls feel when reading works of fiction—that is all. It dies away in the great world and is forgotten. Why, it happened away out there on the plains, where such queer things are done! Everything is wild and savage and all that sort of thing out there, you see, so—let us return to our mutton. And there's the end of it. To live on the plains is to dwell in the moon, according to the notions of those stall-fed worthies who inhabit the purlieus of Washington, to guzzle champagne, look at the Rocky Mountains through a telescope and get re-elected. Their idea of hospitality to a western man is to present him with a red blanket, an uncoked beefsteak and a bale of Killikinnick—the latter to be smoked through a tomahawk, of course.

There is a tradition among those wise men that away out here somewhere—the exact locality is, as yet, a matter of grave doubt—exists an outlandish people, who style themselves Saints and have a strong penchant for women, inasmuch that they appropriate to themselves many wives, greatly to the scandal of morality and all that sort of thing which our mothers taught us. It is also rumored that these Saints have an unpleasant custom of killing the ungodly to save their souls, and that their worldly goods may go to build up the Church in these latter days, whereby many unhappy wretches have perished miserably from the earth, without a monument to mark the spot where the Destroying Angels found and left them food for the unclean creatures that fatten on carrion. These wise men have heard that down south, somewhere on the confines of the desert, there is a place known as the Mountain Meadows, where certain emigrants were massacred once on a time—a hundred and nineteen men, women and children, murdered by Mormons, disguised as Indians. Till gathered and entombed by stranger hands their bones bleached upon the desert sands, and whose journey that way saw a sight of horror—still may, for the authors of the crime will not let the monument to their infamy stand.

There the white skulls, widely scattered, On the trembling gazer scowl, By the fangs of the giant wolf battered And the beak of the buzzard foul. In their silent cells all live, The white skulls drifted lies, And the lizard, like a devil, Runs from out their hollow eyes.

"Tis a place of evil and not all the rains of heaven can wash out the damned spot.

The wise men of the nation have heard all these things. They open their eyes wide with stupid wonder—we have seen them shake their heads with timorous incredulity—they talk ferocious things and they do—nothing. Mountain Meadows—horrible—but then it's such a ways off. Besides, why don't we prosecute those wicked people? Ain't there laws against murder and polygamy? Certainly—we had quite forgotten—there are laws, which there is no possible present means of executing in the Territory. Cannot that fact be so sharpened and driven home as to reach even the slow comprehension of the Government?

The Government does know that it has made a law against polygamy which is daily violated here with all the aggravation of deliberate purpose. That other crimes have been committed, evidence of which have been placed before Congress, with good and sufficient reasons that they were perpetrated by mob authority as made them much more than ordinary crime. If more be desired it will be forthcoming, for the facts are at hand. What, then, are the reasons for procrastination and neglect in these particulars? Is there some secret influence at work neutralizing the claims of Justice, or is it simply inattention? If so, it is becoming culpable in the last degree. One thing is certain, there are men in this Territory now who intend to remain here and have their rights, even if at the cost of trouble—even if the Government be forced to give the protection out of necessity which should have been afforded from motives of sound policy.

BY PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

(SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION-EDIFICE.)

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Washington, June 22. The Senate passed the bill providing for the sale of marine hospitals in the only twenty patients per diem are received.

Also passed the bill granting lands in aid of the Kansas and Neosho Valley Railroad.

HOUSE.

Washington, June 22. The House laid on the table the bill for the improvement of the wagon road from Nebraska to Virginia City.

The House passed the bill appropriating half a million for the construction of an army on Rock Island.

Beckham, from the Pension Committee, reported against pensioning the soldiers of the war of 1812, which he said would involve an annual amount of $10,000,000.

A message was read from the President saying that the joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution was on the 15th inst. officially communicated by the Secretary of State to the Governors of the various States, but that this act was merely ministerial, and not to be construed as involving the assent of the Executive to the proposed amendment, the adoption of which by Congress, in the absence of representatives from eleven States, would be unfortunate, and hints at doubts of the legality of the proceeding.

The President also sent a message covering the recent correspondence with Minister Bigelow at Paris, in regard to the withdrawal of French troops from Mexico and provinces, and the recent conversation with the French Minister of Foreign Affairs on this subject was satisfactory.

GENERAL NEWS.

Washington, June 21. The Senate completed 23 additional pages of the tax bill, making 117 of the 240 pages.

The House passed the army establishment bill—aye 72, nays 41—with the amendment requiring that in all cases where volunteer officers are appointed in the regular army to the same rank or grade held by them in the volunteer appointments, they shall rank as if continuous service from such date.

The President has approved the bill giving bounties to colored soldiers, and pensions, bounties and allowances to their heirs.

The President has approved the bill giving facilities to postal and military communication among the several States. This bill authorizes railroad connections so as to form continuous lines—the most important changes in the bill.

The money order system goes into effect July 2d. It may be issued for fifty dollars and be valid for one year.

Bangor, June 21. The Republican State Convention was attended by 160 delegates. They nominated Gen. J. Chamberlain, of Brunswick, for Governor, and adopted resolutions that all men, without distinction of color or race, are entitled to the utmost civil and political rights, endorsing the recent Congressional amendment, and expressing confidence in Congress.

Washington, June 22. Upon the representation of Mr. Bidwell, the Secretary of the Interior has revoked the order withdrawing the oil market the petroleum lands in California.

The army appropriation bill contains the following Senate amendment, offered by Congress: That the Quartermaster's Department shall advertise in San Francisco and Portland for bids, and shall give preference to articles produced on the Pacific coast, the quality being equal and the price no greater than if purchased on the Atlantic side, with the cost of transportation to the Pacific added thereto.

The Commissioner of Agriculture is in receipt of several superior samples of cotton grown in California.

The following was the vote by which the Senate on Tuesday passed an amendment to the Pacific Railroad bill:

Yea—Anthony, Brown, Buckwalter, Conness, Coffin, Oregan, Davis, Guthrie, Henderson, Hendricks, Howard, Howe, Nye, Sherman, Sprague, Stewart, Van Winkle, Wade, Wiley; total 29.

Nays—Fessenden, Foster, Grimes, Harris, Kirkwood, Morgan, Morrill, Norton, Poland, Trumbull, Wilson and Yates; total 12.

This bill was telegraphed in detail during the debate upon it.

Fennedy offered an amendment, that hereafter the Kansas branch of the Union Pacific Railroad was to be allowed to change its route, the Hannibal & St. Joseph Company should be allowed to change the route of their extension and have additional bonds and lands for that purpose. This amendment was roughly handled by Howard and Conness, and was withdrawn.

Kirkwood said it was the original understanding that the three eastern branches were to meet on the 100th meridian, and unduly push westward, the efforts seem to be to divide. When the Kansas branch gets to Denver it will ask for an independent route through it. He was decidedly in favor, however, of the second section, which authorizes the California Company to operate from the west as rapidly as they can; he therefore moved to strike out the first section.

Henderson said if this motion prevailed, he should appeal to the Senate to repeal all the laws providing for any branch from the Missouri, and he himself would support that legislation which had made the Omaha branch the main stem to the injury of all other interests.

Guthrie advocated the bill, saying that the Union Pacific was not only shorter and better than up the Republican, but it was the only route the Government ought to let the company build upon. He said with the road open to Denver, the company would at once commence a profitable business, but if built to the initial point on the 100th meridian, the Omaha main stem would absorb all business, and there would be no local rail or canal to the Kansas branch, and the worthlessness of that country.

Wilson said this bill was calculated to disturb the construction of the Pacific Railroad. The Union Pacific Company from Omaha have already expended $18,000,000. They have completed 1,000 miles of road, and have 1,000 miles more to build. They have bought land for three hundred miles; they have mortgaged their road over the whole line; they are now trying to borrow twenty millions in Europe, or fail of no less the legislation. The Omaha Company so-called for distinction, claim that they have received fully one million and forty thousand dollars from the Government, and they have vested rights over the entire line, which this bill jeopardizes by the introduction of a new line. It is agreed that the California Company should come 150 miles west of the California boundary; now it is proposed that they may come as far east as they please, and work the sections ahead of their continuous line, but they cannot get 150 miles west of the California boundary. It is not only proposed to clip this Omaha Company of its western end, but to make the Kansas branch, connecting line, and there is not many logical who believe investments in the main road are as safe as they would be without this legislation.

It is rapidly that the company could not mortgage their road faster than, and then in amounts not exceeding the Government bonds received. They have made a mortgage covering the entire line and taken it to Europe, they have acted by no means in accordance with the plan and provision of their rights to lease the California end was being built, and said, we are not legislating to secure the Pacific Railroad charter to a single company, none other being allowed to build. He said of the provision in the law of 1864, that the California Company might build only 150 miles eastward, that this provision was correctly insisted in the conference of the company's report, by the clerk of the committee, and he said on the last day of the session, it was not discovered. Now we propose to correct that.

Stewart said the Omaha Company had not been named where it would cross the 100th meridian, much less had it determined where it would cross the mountains, and yet the engineers were in Nevada making surveys for the purpose of mortgaging the line to foreign capitalists. The California Company had not struck a single mile of road in that region in more than 120 miles at Omaha. The people of the Pacific coast demand the railroad, and don't care who build it, but they do care that no man like Durant shall manipulate this great national interest for the gain of a few operators.

Wilson said Dix was President of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, and no man can question his character. The Government has also five directors in that company. He (Wilson) thought we must have confidence in them till proven otherwise.

A further debate the final vote was taken and the bill passed as above stated.

Chicago, June 21. The following is a summary of the Senate debate, Monday, on the bill to regulate the occupation of the mineral lands, reported May 24th by Mr. Stewart, of the Committee on Mines and Mining, as a sub. for summer's bill. The substitute having been read, Stewart moved to add the following clause, which was adopted—namely:

That as a further condition of the sale, in the absence of the necessary legislation by Congress, the local legislation of any State or Territory may provide rules for working the mines, involving drains or any other kind of means necessary to the proper and safe working of the mines, and that no man like Durant shall manipulate this great national interest for the gain of a few operators.

Stewart explained the laws and customs of the mine, and said the bill was founded on reason and justice, and challenged the admiration of all who investigated them, and a series of wise and judicious decisions have moulded these regulations in a comprehensive system of common law, embracing not only the mining law, but also regulating its use of water for mining purposes. This system has been adopted by all the mineral States and Territories, and it is well understood by a million of men. A miner's law is a part of the law of the land, and he loves it and obeys it; he has given the honest toll of his life to discover wealth, which, when found, is protected by no higher law than that enacted by himself under the sanction of a just and generous Government. Senators who have not given this subject special attention, will realize the importance of this system of free mining. It would be a national calamity to adopt any system that would close the door to the prospector, and give title, so important for permanent prosperity, is daily increasing by the agitation of the act by the introduction of bills, looking to want the miners regard as a general system of confiscation by the absolute necessity of some system of mining to the exclusion of the miner for their investments to extend to the miner the pre-emption, applicable to agricultural districts, and in the case of the mineral lands, deposit precious metal in regular forms of discrimination between perpendicular forms of earth, or will it do to sell lands in advance of discovery, for this would be to deprive the miner of his rights, and the result would be to deprive the miner of his rights, and the result would be to deprive the miner of his rights.

Your Committee have therefore prepared a bill, which may be improved by experience, but your Committee would apprehend evil consequences from any material change in the plan at this time. The bill contemplates the system of free mining, holding mineral lands open to exploration and occupation, subject to legislation by Congress and localities. It recognizes the obligations of the Government to respect private rights which have grown up under its tacit consent and approval. It proposes to allow miners who have located their claims under the act of 1872, to purchase at the rate of five dollars per acre and receive title to such form as they shall grant the mine, with its deposits to any depth, with such reasonable amount of surface as the miners shall determine by law to be necessary for working the same. It also provides that in case of dispute as to the right of possession for the determination of that question in local courts where the laws are understood and administered, makes the public surveys conform to nature and not nature to the survey. It requires the payment of three per cent. of the net proceeds into the treasury until the debt shall have been paid, which is in lieu of the stamp tax now levied. It gives the miners to actual settlers of acquiring titles to their homesteads by segregating agricultural from mineral lands, and confirms the right to the use of water and the right of way for ditches as established by local law and the decision of the courts. In short, it proposes no new system, but respects and confirms a system to which the people are devotedly attached, and removes those of doubt and uncertainty which recently have depressed and retarded the growth and prosperity of our mining communities. In my opinion, this bill will furnish homes to thousands of families, will furnish titles, and increase the production of precious metals. The proposed tax is not large, and will not be oppressive, but it is all the subject will bear and is just—3 per cent. more than the farmer pays on the net proceeds of his farm. Those who have no productions have no money with which to pay, and the miners never refuse to pay as long as they have money.

From Fort Laramie.

Fort Laramie, June 14. I have been absent for a few days, and there is nothing of interest going on around this post but feeding Indians. The commissioners sent out a white man and a Cheyenne Indian a few days ago to go to the Cheyenne village, to tell them to come in to the treaty. They were followed by a party of Sioux and the white man, Mr. Rolan, was knocked off his horse by the Indians, beaten and stopped from going to the village. That is the feeling of the Indians when whites want to go through their country at present. It will be some time before the treaty is completed, as the Indians seem they will keep it, although it will not be the fault of Col. Maynard or the commissioners, as they are doing all in their power to effect a lasting peace. Col. Carrington has arrived here and will start a portion of his command for Big Horn in a few days. The 11th Ohio Vol. Co. will leave here in the morning, for Leavenworth, where they will be mustered out.

SAD ACCIDENT.—We learn that on the 24th inst., as a detachment of the 18th U. S. Infantry was crossing North Platte Ferry, the boat sunk and five of them were drowned.

TO ADVERTISERS.—The REGISTER is the pioneer daily newspaper of Utah. Its immense circulation in every mining camp and city of Montana and Idaho, (to which it gives the telegraphic dispatches a whole week ahead of the Pacific papers), makes it the most advantageous medium for advertising in these four central Territories.

We never display advertisements in double columns. Will our patrons abroad please remember this rule of our office. It will save them and our considerable annoyance and correspondence.

BIRTH.—In this city, June 26th, the wife of Gen. P. Edw. Connor, of a son.

PERSONAL.—We have received a letter from Captain J. C. Morrill, late of this city, who is now at Malade City, Idaho, in which he speaks in high terms of the country and announces his intention of settling down at that point. His numerous friends in this city wish him abundant success.

FROM COLORADO.—Michael Lyden was murdered in Jefferson county on the 15th. Bayard Taylor was lecturing in Denver on the 19th. Gen. Pope was expected in Denver on the 25th. Lt. Gov. Averill, of Connecticut, is visiting the Colorado mines. Bishop Randall has arrived in Colorado and taken charge of that diocese.

SUPREME COURT.—We learn that an application for an interlocutory injunction will be made this morning at 10 A. M., in Independence Hall, in the case of Mark H. Forscutt, appellant vs. the City, as appellees.

Report says that Mr. Long will appear for the appellant and Judge Snow for the appellees.

The chief question involved is said to be the bonds demanded by the "City Fathers," viz: a thousand dollars for eighteen!

DEMOCRATIC TERRITORIAL CONVENTION.—RE-NOMINATION OF MR. HOLBROOK FOR DELEGATE TO CONGRESS.—This body met yesterday at the new theatre. The two rival candidates for the nomination are as well known, were D. W. Douthitt and Ed. Holbrook. A fierce struggle for mastery in the Territorial Convention has been going on in the primaries and County Conventions between the friends of the candidates, and the result considered doubtful up to last Sunday. When the delegates began to arrive, it soon became evident that Holbrook's star was in the ascendant. The vote was taken and Holbrook got thirty-seven votes—every one in the convention but five for Beatty from Alturas. The further proceedings of the Convention were of little interest.

Several encounters occurred after the Convention adjourned, all growing out of the alleged bad faith of delegates in the Convention. That which came nearest resulting seriously took place between Mr. Douthitt and Street. Each fired one shot from a derringer, that of Mr. Douthitt's lodging in a memorandum book in Street's side pocket.—Statesman, 19th.

FULL DELEGATION.—The full delegation from every county in the Territory to the Union Territorial Convention, arrived last night.—J. B., 20th.

The latest news from the Oregon election is that Woods. Union candidate for Governor, has 88 majority.—J. B.

The dam was of full blood, Kentucky Whisket, owned by the same man, making the best cross breed for age, Territory, and all purposes.
